Building Sustainably Constructed Homes

2025

- Construction on the first three homes continues with the erection of “sustainable structural elements” that are intended to withstand wildfires and storm damage. Primary building components are concrete, steel, heavy timber, stone, cementitious panels, and metal roofs. Each of these homes feature walk-out basements with concrete safe rooms and upper-level living areas with majestic views of the Kings River Valley.
- Additional work on the helipad for emergency medical evacuation at Rockspire and the Kings River region was completed.
- A new road was constructed, creating a median separation from the previous narrow roadway in a wooded area leading to the homesites. This road was added in lieu of widening which would have required cutting down trees. It has also created better access to the helipad area.
- In December, several apple and pear trees were planted in the Hugelkultur orchard. These were the first trees planted on the Hugelkultur mounds, as Rockspire has spent the last two years allowing the mounds to begin the process of “decay” to create a fertile, sustainable growing environment. A water irrigation pipe was extended to the mounds.
